FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

MAXIMIZE YOUR COOKING SPACE WITH MINIMAL FUSS!

New Honeycomb Cooktop from Kuppersbusch offers more control in the kitchen.

(Tampa, Florida – February 16, 2007) Kupperbusch pays tribute to the “less is more” philosophy with the unveiling of its new glass ceramic honeycomb cooktop. The EKWE 320 is a flush-mounted system that provides the maximum amount of cooking area while absorbing the least amount of space. Its stylish look and efficient design make it the perfect choice for those who like cook for a crowd or whip up an elegant dinner for two.

Known for its minimalist design aesthetic, Kuppersbusch has combined practical functionality with a pleasing appearance to create a cooktop that would impress even the most experienced of professional chefs. The smooth black ceramic surface offers easy clean-up, while sensor-touch controls regulate heat settings. With nine levels of power control, six cooking zones and up to three dual zones, this versatile electric appliance can easily accommodate the demands of today’s busy kitchens. Another plus is the attention to safety provided by Kuppersbusch designers. To minimize burns, the cooktop detects when a pan is present and only then applies heat. Other thoughtful features include central switch-off controls, an automatic safety cut-off, and child safety locks.

The EKWE 320 is available in a vertical or horizontal hexagonal shape. The appliance measures approximately 12 5/8” by 12 5/8” and may also be ordered with an optional seven cooking zones. The unit retails for about $1750.

Kuppersbusch manufacturers an exciting line of cooking products including Built-in Coffee Machines, Built-in Electric Ovens, Built-in Gas Cooktops, Built-in Cooktops, Matrix Built-in Appliances and Designer Hoods.

Since 1875, Kuppersbusch has been creating world-class kitchen appliances of unparalleled design featuring the industry’s highest level of performance. After more than 125 years, still at the forefront of technology, the Kuppersbusch name remains synonymous with superb quality, impeccable design, innovative engineering and an incredible focus on customer service.
